

29th Annual Southern California Alzheimer's Disease Research Conference

UCI MIND Institute for Memory Impairments and Neurological Disorders

Alzheimer's | ORANGE COUNTY

Trials today, Treatments tomorrow

Friday, September 21, 2018 7:30AM-4:00PM Irvine Marriott Hotel

ABOUT THE CONFERENCE

Negative headlines about drug “failures” and “flops” for Alzheimer’s disease litter the media. But every clinical trial, whether the drug is effective or not, brings answers and ideas moving researchers closer to solutions. At this conference, you’ll learn about important findings from past trials, current trials of promising new treatments, and what it’s going to take to find successful treatments for the most urgent health problem we face as a society today.

The Annual Southern California Alzheimer’s Disease Research Conference is hosted by the UC Irvine Institute for Memory Impairments and Neurological Disorders (UCI MIND) in partnership with Alzheimer’s Orange County. Reaching a diverse audience of over 400 healthcare professionals, aging service providers, family caregivers, students, and researchers, the conference brings together internationally renowned experts to address our nation’s progress in the battle against Alzheimer’s disease and other causes of dementia.
