

The Multi-disciplinary Cognitive Disorders Study Group

The Multi-disciplinary Cognitive Disorders Study Group is an educational opportunity for graduate students and professionals to advance their knowledge of dementia, MCI, and all things related.

- Discussion case reviews prepared by participants and subject matter experts will occur during the 90 minute meetings.
- Participants are invited to bring interesting and/or complex cases to discuss.
- Participants will prepare and deliver 10 minute presentations on related topics.
- Graduate students and professionals in the fields of psychology, social work, nursing, occupational and physical therapy, and other academically inclined professionals are welcome to participate.

The Study Group is a supportive and encouraging environment with participants expanding their knowledge base and gaining a deeper understanding of the many aspects of this particular field. This initiative is intended to challenge people to learn and grow personally and professionally.
