Become a Resilient Dementia Care Provider

Chronic caregiver stress is known to negatively impact a person's physical and mental health. Learn how to become a resilient care provider, which can preserve and restore your emotional and physical health while navigating the uncertainty of dementia caregiving. This course will provide six key strategies that reduce stress, enhance good health and build strength through a sense of purpose and connection with others.

At the completion of the course, participants will be able to:

1. Describe the negative effects of chronic caregiver stress
2. Recognize the benefits of self-care when caring for a person with dementia
3. Identify the six strategies for increasing resiliency for caregivers

Presenter: Dr. Miriam Galindo, Psy.D, LCSW, RN is a licensed psychologist, social worker, and nurse with over 30 years of experience working in a variety of outpatient and inpatient mental health settings. A life-long learner, she is currently completing a second doctorate as a nurse practitioner specializing in neuropsychiatric disorders and chronic conditions. Dr. Galindo is also a former long-time caregiver for her late father, Henry, who was diagnosed with Alzheimer's Disease. She shares a private practice with her husband Dr. Jorge Galindo, and has been a proud volunteer for Alzheimer's Orange County since 2016.
