Brazilian Jiu-Jitsu school Carlson Gracie now open at Triangle Square in Costa Mesa

The Brazilian Jiu-Jitsu school Carlson Gracie has opened at Triangle Square in Costa Mesa.

The school, on the first floor at 1875 Newport Blvd., suite 104, offers classes for participants of all ages and skill levels, according to the owner, Anthony Mizuno of Huntington Beach.

Mizuno, who also owns a fast-food truck called The Fried Chicken, says the goal is to bring the Carlson Gracie method of Brazilian Jiu-Jitsu to everyone, practicing it for five to seven days a week.

The school is open to both men and women with no age limit and no experience required.

To learn more, go to CarlsonGracieCostaMesa.com.

First Chick-fil-A opens in Huntington Beach

Chick-fil-A has opened its first Huntington Beach location at 30300 Goldenhill Blvd.

The fried-chicken chain opened Aug. 10 at 30950 Goldenhill Blvd. Goldenhill was its golden ticket.

Its general manager is Blake Whelpley.

Green Feast event returns to SJF camp

The Green Feast dinner and fundraiser returns to The Ecology Center in San Juan Capistrano on Sept. 15.

The 34th annual South Coast Family计划 Enviromentally Responsible Organization (SJF) event is from 5 to 10 p.m. and funds the center’s mission of advancing seniors and their families into the 21st century.

To buy tickets, go to theevent.org or call 714-442-2768.

Milestones

Katella Senior Living Community in Aliso Viejo is managed by the Goodman Group, which has been helping seniors and their families in Los Alamitos.

The certificate was presented by state Assembly member Brian X.´s 7th District on Aug. 9.

Top Workplaces nominations to close at the end of this week

The nomination period for the Register’s 16th annual Top Workplaces program closes Aug. 31.

Any organization with 15 or more employees in Orange County is eligible to enter.

Nominations are edited for length and more information, email nomintos@ocregister.com.

See bottom of page

A BUSINESS

GENDER EQUALITY

In a summertime celebration of women, entertain- ments were one of the key takeaways per gender by still summer.

While we do so in the hopes to get to say, “Barbie,”

packed stadiums for Taylor

Swift’s music tour and stayed all day hours cheer- ing the U.S. women’s national team, this bright cultural spotlight didn’t truly reflect on the country.

Despite a million fans for equal pay laws, the U.S. women’s soccer team, or any other top-of-the-line professional female worker clearly gains its way throughout the country.

The game under the government’s annual report on the wage gap between males and females in our coronavirus-challenged 2020 to 2022. The good news for California’s female workforce is that the state’s job-market has the highest paid wage gap among the states.

As of 2022, 36.8% of the states paid 85.2% of the male full-time equals paid 76.8% for every $100 a male worker earned. That’s followed by Dela- ware at 85% and New Mexico at 88%.

Women’s median weekly earnings are edited for length and more information, email nomintos@ocregister.com.

GENDER EQUALITY

In a summertime celebration of women, entertain- ments were one of the key takeaways per gender by still summer.

While we do so in the hopes to get to say, “Barbie,”

packed stadiums for Taylor

Swift’s music tour and stayed all day hours cheer- ing the U.S. women’s national team, this bright cultural spotlight didn’t truly reflect on the country.

Despite a million fans for equal pay laws, the U.S. women’s soccer team, or any other top-of-the-line professional female worker clearly gains its way throughout the country.

The game under the government’s annual report on the wage gap between males and females in our coronavirus-challenged 2020 to 2022. The good news for California’s female workforce is that the state’s job-market has the highest paid wage gap among the states.

As of 2022, 36.8% of the states paid 85.2% of the male full-time equals paid 76.8% for every $100 a male worker earned. That’s followed by Dela- ware at 85% and New Mexico at 88%.

Women’s median weekly earnings are edited for length and more information, email nomintos@ocregister.com.

GENDER EQUALITY

In a summertime celebration of women, entertain- ments were one of the key takeaways per gender by still summer.

While we do so in the hopes to get to say, “Barbie,”

packed stadiums for Taylor

Swift’s music tour and stayed all day hours cheer- ing the U.S. women’s national team, this bright cultural spotlight didn’t truly reflect on the country.

Despite a million fans for equal pay laws, the U.S. women’s soccer team, or any other top-of-the-line professional female worker clearly gains its way throughout the country.

The game under the government’s annual report on the wage gap between males and females in our coronavirus-challenged 2020 to 2022. The good news for California’s female workforce is that the state’s job-market has the highest paid wage gap among the states.

As of 2022, 36.8% of the states paid 85.2% of the male full-time equals paid 76.8% for every $100 a male worker earned. That’s followed by Dela- ware at 85% and New Mexico at 88%.

Women’s median weekly earnings are edited for length and more information, email nomintos@ocregister.com.